

SOCIETY FIXES ITS ATTENTION ON THE FORTHCOMING GYMKHANA

WHILE the offerings presented by the social calendar for society during the coming week are confined solely to the most informal parties, dinners and club meetings, society has something both gay and exciting to anticipate in the week that follows, when the gymkhana of the sixth infantry and the 10th infantry will be held. All of the feminine fair of social prominence in El Paso will either participate in the women's events, or be on hand to applaud their favorite officer as he does his riding stunts.

The old time jousts of the medieval days have been replaced by gymkhanas and things in this line. But the spirit is the same, the knights of old tilted and jousted and unhorsed one another more or less roughly, solely for the approval of some fair woman watching from a flower bedecked seat. Our present day knight will risk his neck on some cavorting pony to win the favor of a trimly clad maid, smiling at him from the latest up to the second word in motor cars, and, in a few years, it would not be surprising if the women watched from an airship, at rest like a big bird floating in the air, while the business knights ran relay races on aeroplanes. Strange things have happened.

To go back to the gymkhana, there are many good horsewomen in El Paso, and in spite of the large number of socially prominent who have migrated to other parts of the world to spend the summer months, there are many of them remaining in El Paso. Miss Hilda Bauer, who was a prize winner at the horse show, Mrs. Josephine Morfitt, Mrs. Max Weber, Miss Edna Robertson, and all of the army women come to mind immediately. With the best horsemen in the city, and the best horsewomen among the army officers taking part, the affair is sure to be a social success, as well as a most interesting event for lovers of equestrian sports.

Among the social events of the coming week are, of course, the week end dance at the Country Club, the Thursday night dance at the Hotel Paso del Norte, and the usual church society meetings. The younger set will have several affairs. Miss Grace Fieck will entertain the U. E. D. club. Mrs. E. P. Rankin will be the hostess for the Beta Beta club. Miss Sarah Bridges will have the Omega Phi sorority. Mrs. L. E. Hullum will have the Thursday bridge club members at her home, and Miss Vera Hallard will be the hostess for the class party of the Barren and Philanthropic class of Trinity Methodist church.

Brown Hair and Blue Eyes Calls for Blue Dress Shades

MOST shades of blue are becoming to the brown haired girl with blue eyes. The color of her eyes is apt to be a deeper tone than in the case of the blonde and is intensified, not faded, by the juxtaposition of the same color. If the hair is red, no shade of blue should be attempted. Pale pink and salmon pink are often becoming to the brown haired woman, but, as a rule, she looks best in pure white or black, which simply form a background for her own vivid colors.

A dark woman with marked color can wear both red and the lighter shades of rose and pink. If she is at all sallow, she will find these colors trying, and a better choice is cream or pale yellow. Purple is especially becoming to pale, dark women and the same color generally looks well in warm browns that point out the darker tints of the hair.

Brown is a safe color for most women, for the reason that the majority of American women have brown hair. Modern rule in choosing colors seems to be to match either the color of the eyes or the hair, and while this is better than our grandmother's system, it has its pitfalls. All blue eyes cannot stand the nearness of blue, and the same is true of a too general use of brown; in some cases it kills the life and color in the hair. So in choosing a brook color, be sure the shade either matches the hair or is sufficiently darker to form a relief.

With a Poor Complexion. Young girls with a clear, rosy complexion can wear almost any color to advantage; the problem is far more difficult for the woman past youth or one with a discolored, sallow or muddied skin. Pink, lovely on the pink checked girl, presents quite a different aspect on the rosy checked matron. As women grow older the natural pink of the cheeks is apt to be less clear and it often takes on a bluish or murenta hue. When this point is reached all shades of pink or rose should be discarded. White is universally becoming; it enhances the beauty of a fresh complexion and softens the defects of a sallow one. The darker shades of blue all have a beneficial effect on the complexion and can safely be adopted by women of all ages.
